SUCCESSFUL VENTURE
Museum's Lecture a Hit.
Community and University were joined enthusiastically last week in a project to enrich all the boys and girls in town... the intellectual level was high and uncompromising... the children's delighted response carried over beyond the event itself to an absorbing sequel the following weekend.

In short, the "Christmas Lecture" was Princeton at its best. Sponsored by the University for the new Princeton Junior Museum, the Christmas Lecture was given by Prof. Alan Shennstone on the Monday after Christmas in one of the giant lecture halls of Palmer Physical Laboratories. The subject, Joseph Henry's experiments in electricity and magnetism.

After the one-hour lecture, there was a lab period for the first 60 boys and girls who signed up, and a chance to work out for yourself the experiments you had just watched Prof. Shennstone perform.

"This is the first time I have ever tried to lecture before an audience with such a low average age," Prof. Shennstone began, somewhat tentatively, as he looked over the amphitheatre.

The average age was about 12, and there were about 200 of them, their high, soft prepubertal voices sounding a strange echo in a room accustomed to the gruff rumble of freshmen and sophomores.

Parents were there, too — perhaps two dozen — and in the farthest rows at the back, several full professors from the University faculty.

The Henry Story. Dr. Shennstone need not have apologized for his unfamiliarity with 12-year-olds. Speaking with dignity and without a trace of condescension, he held his audience with the story of Joseph Henry, a poor boy born in the late 18th century, who had to leave school for a time when he was ten years old so that he could work to support his family: a boy who had to get his schooling on the side, on his own time, and who, as a young man, had to perform his experiments with improvisations such as wire insulated with silk from his wife's petticoat, because America, in the early 19th century simply was not prepared to equip so rare a creature as a scientist.

Joseph Henry, of course eventually joined the Princeton faculty. Prof. Shennstone, when he had finished the brief biography, turned to the long lab table behind him, set out with models of Henry's instruments, and began to show the youngsters what Henry had discovered about magnetism and electricity, and how he had made his discoveries.

"If anybody asks you what negative electricity is," Dr. Shennstone said, "you can say it's the charge that's developed when you rub hard rubber with fur, and that's THE BASIC definition."

And he rubbed a hard rubber wand with fur and showed how the charged wand affected a strip of metal. And he rubbed a glass rod with silk, produced a positive charge, and showed the effect of that.

"I Did That!" When he inserted a thin copper plate and a zinc plate into a jar containing a weak solution of acid, one boy in the audience turned quickly and quietly to his father and they grinned at each other. They had, themselves, made just such a battery.

Using a 75-year-old electromagnet, Dr. Shennstone demonstrated the law of induced currents. With a powerful little light, he flashed the dial of a galvanometer on a big screen and showed the youngsters the swing of the needle as he produced either a big current or a little current by varying the speed with which he introduced a magnet into a coil of wire.

"We can find things old the same way Henry did — by getting a shock," Dr. Shennstone observed. "Now, if I can have about 10 boys and girls."

There was a general stampede down the aisle stairs, and if Dr. Shennstone hadn't called a halt after the second contingent had received — with squeals — its electric shock, the experiment would probably still be in progress.

Pure Science. However, it was not in any sense a "Mr. Wizard" lecture complete with flashing blue light and science hocus-pocus. True, there was a dramatic "snap" of static electricity from the Leyden jar, and the fun of seeing and hearing a little bell ring at one side of the lecture hall when the lab assistant generated current at the other end. It was in just this manner that Professor Henry used to signal his wife that he was on his way home for lunch.

But Prof. Shennstone was uncompromising: he was not putting on a show he was not talking. Crib Semt science. He gave for the children, he said afterward, essentially the same lecture about Joseph Henry, which he had given last year for a group of faculty members, using for the younger audience a less sophisticated vocabulary, but not "talking down" at any time.

At the end of the one hour talk and demonstration, Dr. Shennstone said formally, "That is all, gentlemen," and the lucky "first come" 60 boys and girls stomped downstairs to the lab.

Here they found tables set with freshman laboratory equipment, three instructors in the physics department, and three technical helpers. On each table was a dime-sized compass, a galvanometer attached to a coil of insulated wire so that the children could measure the flow of current induced by passing a magnet through the coil, a pair of styrofoam balls to use in experiments with electrical charges, and a free swinging cradle to use in examining the polarity of magnets.

"I Want to Know," "Would there be less current if there were less coils of wire?" asked the boy in the striped T shirt of a lab assistant.

"If I turn the magnet and drop the south pole through the coil, what will happen?" asked a lab helper. "The needle will go in the opposite direction," promptly replied the boy in the faded dungarees.

Dr. Shenstone walked about the lab, watching and suggesting "Play with this," he said to a very young boy who didn't quite seem to know what to do with that magnet. One boy, whose friend had made his hair stand on end with a charge of electricity, tried to do the same with a magnet. "No, no, that won't do it!" Dr. Shenstone laughed.

The Christmas Lecture had been held on Monday. The following Saturday and Sunday, the Princeton Junior Museum rooms on the third floor of Borough Hall were bustling with boys and girls who wanted to do the experiments — children who had been on the Palmer lab "waiting list," or those who had been lucky enough to get into the lab and wanted to try everything all over again.
Mrs. Mildred Goldenberger, director of the Museum, isn't sure exactly how many boys and girls came during the weekend, but she had bought 48 cough syrup bottles to use for making little electrosopes, and they were all used on Saturday alone.

She thinks about 100 children came, over the two-day period. Part of the fun, of course, was combing a chunk of hear-skin rug (formerly part of the Goldenberger home decor) to charge the electrosopes.

More to Come. Although she shrugs off any particular credit for the project, the Christmas Lecture was fundamentally Mrs. Goldenberger's idea. She learned that Palmer Laboratory had acquired a piece of equipment which showed how Samuel F. B. Morse had used Henry's experiments when he perfected the telegraph "swiped" is a word often employed in this connection, and she thought Princeton children ought to be allowed to see the historic piece. She had also been discussing with friends Michael Faraday's Christmas lectures for the children of 19th century London, and one day, in a chance meeting with Dr. Shenstone, she asked if he would lecture on Prof. Henry to the children of Princeton. He said indeed he would. The University acted as sponsor, contributing the lab and its equipment. Laboratory assistants volunteered their vacation time.

The lecture was so successful that there is no thought of waiting until next Christmas for another. Sometime during the winter school vacation, in February, there will be a talk on the chemistry of chromatography, sponsored by the Princeton Area Science Education Committee, headed by Dr. Max Blumenfeld.

At Easter, there will be "Underwater Archaeology" with a chance to handle all the TOWN TOPICS does not assume financial responsibility for inaccuracies resulting from typographical errors by advertiser. things brought up from the Mediterranean by Stanton Walerinan.

And if the standards set by Dr. Shenstone, the University and the Junior Museum remain as they were for the Christmas Lecture, these coming lectures will again show Princeton at its best level of community cooperation.

FROM DOLLS TO ROCKS

At Museum This Week. The Princeton Junior Museum will hold three special programs this weekend ranging from a display of dolls to a discussion of geology.

"Rockhounds and Pebblepups, 1964" is the title given to a new program in geology which will have its first meeting at 10 Saturday. At 1:30, Edmund D. Cook will exhibit his collection of toy fire engines and fire-fighting equipment.

The collection includes examples of antique cast-iron toys and models of hand- and horse-drawn fire engines from the 19th and early 20th centuries. The display is part of a new exhibit entitled "Toys, Dolls and Games" now being assembled at the museum.

A feature of the exhibit will be a collection of creative toys from around the world. On Sunday at 2, children are invited by Mrs. Donald Herzberg to arrange the doll display.

Located in Borough Hall, the museum is open to all children from 9:30 to 4:40 Saturday and 1 to 4 on Sunday. There is no admission charge.

WHERE SIX IN FAMILY DIED IN FIRE: The McMahon home in Lawrence Township showed little outside evidence early Tuesday of the roaring blaze which had killed all seven occupants except Mrs. McMahon late Monday. She escaped through the window at upper left by dropping to the roof of the garage. Neighbors rescued her from there.

TOPICS Of the Town

SIX IN FAMILY DIE

In Lawrence Township Blaze. Six members of a Lawrence Township family died late Monday night when fire swept through the ground floor of their eight-room home at 26 Pine Knoll near the Princeton Pike. Only the mother of the family survived.

Dead are Edward J. McMahon, 43, an engineer at American Cyanamid's agricultural research center; his four children, Kevin, 10; Brian, 9; Eileen, 8, and Kathleen, 6; and his wife's aunt, Miss Margaret Smyth, who lived with the family. She was in her 70's.

The one survivor of the family, Mrs. Cecilia V. McMahon, was rescued by neighbors after she had dropped from a second floor window to the roof of the garage. Suffering from smoke inhalation and burns over half of her body, she is reported in serious condition at Helene Fuld Hospital in Trenton.

Mrs. McMahon was saved by Jonas Cohen, 34, of 23 Pine Knoll Drive, and John Whitley, 41, of 21 Pine Knoll Drive. They used Mr. Whitley's extension ladder to bring Mrs. Mc-Mahon down from the garage roof.

Cause Unknown. Just when and how the fire started is still not known. Chief Linton Reed of the Lawrence Road Fire Company is reported as saying that the family was evidently asleep when the fire was discovered shortly before midnight. One possible cause might have been a backfire from the furnace, although Mrs. McMahon is said to have mumbled to police from her hospital bed that she had not heard an explosion.

Or the fire might possibly have started as early as 9:30 p.m., according to County Fire Marshal John T. Dempster. He said he found an electric clock and a man's pocket watch stopped at that hour, although another clock did not stop until midnight.

It was later reported that the fire probably started in or near an upholstered settee in the family room in the rear of the ground floor. Investigators were trying to locate and question a reported caller at the house Monday evening who might have smoked during his visit.

Neither Mr. McMahon, his wife nor Miss Smyth were smokers, according to Mr. Dempster. He said that heat and fumes did most of the damage upstairs where all six bodies were found.

Fire Reported by Neighbors. Mr. Cohen and his wife, Sandra, who live across the street from the McMahon home, first smelled smoke shortly after 11:45 and thought it might be a fire in their own house. Then they heard Mrs. McMahon's cries.

As Mr. Cohen and Mr. Whitley dashed across to the McMahon home, Mrs. Cohen telephoned an alarm which brought the Lawrenceville, Lawrence Road and Slackwood Fire Companies to the scene.

Mr. Cohen and Mr. Whitley found Mrs. McMahon at the window overlooking the garage roof. The window opened on a storage room adjoining the master bedroom.

After breaking a pane of glass next to the front door, Mr. Cohen was able to unlock the door, but he could not enter the house. Smoke and intense heat repelled him.

Mr. Whitley got the extension ladder from his garage, raised it to the garage roof and pleaded with Mrs. McMahon to climb out of the window. The two men then brought her down the ladder.

Firemen Blocked Out. Firemen were also unable to enter the house, even with the aid of smoke masks. It was not until they had brought the fire under control that they were able to reach the bodies on the second floor, recovering the last one at 1 a.m.

Mr. McMahon's body was found on the floor of the storage room. The children's still lay on their beds.

They apparently had been suffocated by the smoke. Miss Smyth lay on the floor not far from her bed.

Fire Marshal Dempster said that investigation into the cause of the fire will continue. It will be made by himself, the Lawrence Township building inspector and Fire Chief Reed.

Mr. Dempster stated that he heard the emergency calls concerning the fire on his monitor radio at home. He then sped to the scene.

With Cyanamid Since 1951. Mr. McMahon had been an engineer with American Cyanamid for more than 12 years, and he and his family were among the first to move into the new residential section a little over a year ago. He was born in Jamaica, Long Island, and was graduated from the City College of New York in 1941.

He was an army combat veteran, having served as a communications platoon sergeant in the South Pacific. He was in the army from late 1942 until February 1946.

The four McMahon children attended the new Benjamin Franklin Elementary School on Princeton Pike. Kevin was in the fifth grade, Brian in the fourth, Eileen in the third, and Kathleen was a first grader.

JAZZ QUARTET

JOHN LEWIS & CO.
IN JAZZ PROGRAM

Quartet Offers a Polished
Concert at Philharmonia

The Modern Jazz Quartet, one of the very few jazz groups whose proper milieu is the concert hall, demonstrated last night at Philharmonia Hall, as it has done many times before, that a valid jazz concert can be carefully planned and executed. The quartet is a remarkably polished and integrated group, its pianist and musical director, John Lewis, develops each piece with painstaking care that results in performances that are far more completely finished than one is accustomed to hear from a jazz ensemble. Yet, despite its avoidance of the casualness that is too often passed off as extemporaneity in jazz, the quartet plays with the lithe, pulsing grace that is the very essence of jazz.

The program was largely a showcase for the compositions of Mr. Lewis, as the quartet's programs are apt to be. To a degree, this is only proper, for Mr. Lewis has a personal style, the ability to imprint this style on his group and a sense of form that are matched in jazz only by Duke Ellington. Charlie Mingus and Thelonious Monk may be comparable as stylists and ensemble leaders but neither has Mr. Lewis's feeling for form.

For the last year and a half the quartet has worked part-time to allow the members to pursue other activities. But the four instrumentalists—Milt Jackson, vibraphone; Percy Heath, bass; Connie Kay, drums, and Mr. Lewis—have lost none of the tightly knit, highly responsive qualities that continue to make this group unique in jazz.

McCarter Circus Delightful. "The Littlest Circus," which played two performances at McCarter Theatre on Saturday, was everything that circuses in this country usually are not—imaginative, amusing, impeccable in taste, handsome, and skillfully paced. It was a delight, not only for those many, in any children who were predominantly and primarily its audience but for their parental ringmasters as well.

Most circuses around today are freighted with too much and too many of everything (except freshness and talent): ghastly over-costuming which only a Mummer's mummy would call "beeyoudeeful;" too many scruffy, spiritless animals; too many marble-faced, lard-legged frumps swaying sadly on fail-safe trapezes; too many carnie roughnecks hawking ice-cold hot dogs and red-hot cokes at a 1000% mark-up; too many wino roustabouts stumbling over limp coils of rope.

"Going to the circus" used to be a pleasant parent-child outing; now it's mostly an irritating, wallet-flattening nothing. The once-proud "Biggest Show on Earth" has become probably "The Biggest Bore on Earth." Ask nearly any parent—or almost any kid, for that matter.

This is exactly what "The Littlest Circus," as presented at McCarter on Saturday, was not. Instead, it was a light-hearted, cheerful entertainment, full of gracefulness, infectious good humor and intriguing originality, far superior to that which is usually cooked up as "children's entertainment."

"Happy and Honest." Most current theater for children is likely to be a slap-dash combo of Mother Goose and Father Disney, prat-falls and fright. ("Let's have the ogre eat the baby on-stage, Charlie. It's punchier that way.") "The Littlest Circus" was just the opposite—happy, honest and disarming stuff without a phoney or jarring or superfluous bit of stage "business" to slow its ever-changing, ever-smooth segueing from one of the 25 acts to another.

FROM OFF-BROADWAY: Claudette Nevins and Moses Gunn, two central figures in Prof. Martin Duberman's "In White America," will appear in McCarter Theatre next Wednesday, January 15. The original New York cast is making its exclusive out-of-town engagement in Princeton.

"The Littlest Circus" kept its enthusiastic and talented company of seven unostentatiously hopping from one scene to another. The one-man band in one act, for example, later became an acrobat, a bear, the featured "whirligig," a lion, the nether part of an elephant, and a dressage-wise Lipizzaner horse.

The costumes were exceptionally handsome. The pantomime clowning was acutely deft and sensitive and yet sufficiently expositional so that even a four-year-old lost none of its meaning. ("Look at the old seal, daddy. Throw him another fish," said one.) The choreography by Nelle Fisher was so well-integrated that it transitioned beautifully from one act to another—none of the usual "Stop. Now we're going to dance" bump that is felt in the "Oklahoma!" school of pseudo-ballet.

The kids—and their parents—who saw "The Littlest Circus" on parade on Saturday in McCarter saw something new and fine in children's theater. Those who didn't—well, there's always the hope that the troupe will return to Princeton.

Meanwhile, probably typical of the young audiences' reaction was that of a no-nonsense nine-year-old male critic whom we accompanied to the first performance: "I gotta see it again this afternoon. I just gotta." He did. And he still wants to see "The Littlest Circus" again—and again—and again.

"IN WHITE AMERICA"
At McCarter Next Wednesday, Prof. Martin B. Duberman, of Princeton University's history department, will see his off-Broadway hit, "In White America," at McCarter on Wednesday, January 15. The exclusive out-of-town showing will honor the author. The curtain will be at 8:30.

The original New York cast will come to Princeton to portray the Negro's struggle for freedom in this country from 1778 to the present. Prof. Duberman has used excerpts from writings, speeches, letters and memoirs. Included are Thomas Jefferson's comment on Negroes as an "inferior race," and a notice to French officers during World War I not to fraternize with Negro troops.

Gloria Foster will take the part of Daisy Bates, who tried to enter Little Rock Central High School in 1957. The production was acclaimed by "Time" as one of the highlights of the 1963 off-Broadway season. Telephone orders for "In White America" may be placed by calling McCarter, WA 1-8700.

SAY UNCLE? Jerry Lewis throws a lady wrestler in "Who's Minding the Store?" at the Playhouse through Saturday.

News Of The Theatres

tickets are on sale now in anticipation of unusual public interest.

A "Mirth and Merriment Festival" begins at 8 Friday, and will include award-winning cartoons, three Charlie Chaplin films and two short subjects, titled "Muscle Beach" and "Day of the Painter." The latter received an Oscar.

The first Princeton showing of "Rocco and His Brothers," winner of 22 major awards, will be given at 8 on Tuesday. The Luchino Visconti film was released in 1961, and many critics thought it more truly representative of Italian movies than "La Dolce Vita," brought out the same year.

GARDEN

The Conjugal Bed (through Tuesday) won Marina Vlady the best-of-breed award at last year's Cannes Film Festival. As Regina, a superficially sweet and docile girl, she turns into a sexual tigress once she is married to Alfonso (Ugo Tognazzi), a used car salesman who soon becomes nothing but a used-up spouse because of Regina's incessant demands.

For Alfonso, marriage to Regina is little more than an athletic contest and the big brass bed in their room an amatory trampoline. He eventually dies from an overdose of affection.

All of this hanky-panky adds up to a somewhat lumpy comedy, occasionally witty and cynical in its satiric picture of a non-satiric 40-year-old man trapped by a voracious female half his age. For many it will probably be too literal for laughter, too clinical for compassion. Others will find it an intriguing little essay on gynarchy and the natural, or acquired, superiority of women.

PRINCE

Strait-Jacket (now showing) is a dandy little training film for would-be axe murderers. Just see it, go sharpen an axe and start hacking away for fun and profit.

The movie, which places Joan Crawford in the active role of people-chopper, was written by Robert Bloch, the guy who did the script for "Psycho." Its stark frightfulness makes Lizzie Borden seem by comparison nothing more than a sweet kid whose hand slipped.

In the film, Miss Crawford is released after 20 years in a mental institution to which she is confined after her injudicious folderol with axe. "Strait-Jacket" was released only a week ago. Maybe it should have been permanently confined.

PLAYHOUSE

Who's Minding the Store? (through Saturday) and Who's Been Sleeping in My Bed? (Sunday through Tuesday) naturally lead to a third question "Who's in Charge Out There at Paramount?" For Paramount perpetrated these twin twittings, "Store" featuring Jerry Lewis and "Bed" starring Dean Martin.

If Lewis and Martin hadn't split up, a separation which probably caused more wailing heard in the hills of Hollywood than even the Liz and Eddie fracture, there might have been enough humor in the two to turn out one reasonably funny composition with some such title as "Who's Been Schlep-ping in My Store?" United they might have stood, divided they fall — flat.

"Store" is typically loud Lewis ("clowning" is Hollywood's word for his noisy behavior, and of course the only good clowns are silent). "Bed" sags badly because of a weak script. The kids might like "Store," but "Bed" is not for them — maybe it's for adults, but only those with childlike mentalities.

IT'S NEW To Us

A PROUD RUG

For the Collector. It isn't often we use a word like "exciting" when we write about a rug. We use it now with deliberate intent, and we think you will, too, after you see the rugs we are about to describe.

These are antique rugs from the Middle East, assembled with knowledge and a loving, discerning eye by Mrs. Helen Benedict. She is a collector and a connoisseur who enjoys sharing her treasures, and she offers for sale whatever the market has offered to her. You reach her by calling WA 1-7946, and making an appointment to examine the rugs in the handsome Benedict living-room.

But don't think for a minute that these are merely second-hand Orientals. If that's what you want, dial another number. All these are peasant and nomad rugs, woven in the years between 1770 (approximately) and 1910 by the tribesmen of Turkey, Afghanistan and the Caucasus for their own use.

The rugs are all wool, woven and tied, knot by knot, in a weave so close and snug that some are almost reversible. And they were made for use. One, about two by four feet, and another about three by five, were made to hang as bags from the back of a camel. Some were thrown over a donkey or a horse.

Even for these humble uses, nomad weavers created magnificently rich and decorative patterns, astonishingly rich when you think of the barren steppe lands where these people lived. Stylized floral motifs are combined with strong adaptations of geometric forms in designs which are so distinctive that the collector can identify the tribal origin of a rug by its pattern.

Dyes, of course, are vegetable. Colors are mostly shades of warm claret, sapphire and the natural beige of undyed wool.

Within the large Turkoman group, Mrs. Benedict has a Tekke Bokhara about four by six feet, characterized by the lines that connect one "gul," or stylized medallion, with another.

The small rugs that were made as camel or donkey bags usually have a top; that is, they are not the same all the way around. Often there is finely stitched embroidery along the top because, as Mrs. Benedict says, "They just couldn't seem to stop decorating."

A Baluch, in the Turkoman group, has a predominantly blue look. Another Baluch has a prayer design with two arches. Usually a prayer rug has only one arch, showing which way to turn the rug for prayer, so this rug is, in its way, reversible. Apparently weavers made prayer rugs simply because they liked them. Tribesmen themselves were Christian and not Moslem.

One of the rarest of Mrs. Benedict's rugs is a Shodor, a rug with brown predominating in its color spectrum. The Shodor went out of existence as a tribe about 1800, and their rugs are not often found today.

Women were weavers for the Turkoman tribes and a modern housewife will find her imagination stretched indeed as she examines the inventive detail and the unbelievably fine craftsmanship in these rugs. It must have taken about a year to make one, Mrs. Benedict estimates.

Rugs made by the women are a good bit stronger and more masculine in design than rugs made by the men, curiously enough. Man-made Caucasian rugs, like the Chi-Chi, often have a fine, intricate, almost feminine design. But there is one, a barbarically splendid Kazak (yes, Cossack) that is anything but feminine.

As you look at its wild and leaping pattern, you'll see an almost uncanny resemblance to some American Indian rugs — Navajo in particular — and to modern Scandinavian design.

The Kazak, by the way, is $300 which makes it about the most expensive of the rugs Mrs. Benedict has at the moment. You can buy some of the rugs for about $45-$50.

Another rare rug in the Benedict collection is a 200-year-old Chotan from Samarkand, a rug woven so close to the eastern edges of the nomad area that it has, even to an untinted eye, a strong Chinese appearance.

In addition to rugs, Mrs. Benedict collects wall hangings, and she has two Turkomans that are exceptional. They are about a foot wide and two or three feet long, but originally they were forty feet long, and designed to go all the way around a tent.

Using deep reds and blues against the bare tan kilim, or warp, the women created patterns that are formal, yet

YOUNG VIRTUOSO: Jaime Laredo will be the next artist in the University Concerts Series I.

MUSIC In Princeton

LAREDO ON SERIES I
Young Violinist Here. A violin virtuoso of the first rank at the age of 22, Jaime Laredo of Bolivia, will appear in McCarter Theatre Monday as the third performer in Series I of the University Concerts.

The 8:30 concert is sold out, however, stage seats at $2.50 are now on sale at the University Store and standing-room at $1.50 will be available at McCarter at 7:30 Monday evening.

For his Princeton appearance, Mr. Laredo has chosen Vivaldi's Sonata in A major, Opus 2, No. 2; Beethoven's Sonata No. 8 in G major, Opus 30, No. 3 and Schubert's Rondeau Brilliant in B minor, D 895. Following intermission, he will play Hindemith's Sonata in E major, Kreisler's Recitative and Scherzo - Caprice, Bloch's "Nigun" from "Baal Shem" and Saint-Saens' Etude en forme de valse.

In 1959, Mr. Laredo won the Queen Elizabeth of Belgium Competition, and since that time, he has appeared with the orchestras of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Washington and Dallas.

After his Carnegie Hall recital debut, the New York "Times" wrote that Mr. Laredo "has all the technical skills a fine fiddler needs: a sure left hand, a sensitive, supple bow arm and a tone of color and plasticity. Not many violinists in their teens have faced the future with rosier prospects."

CARL WEINRICH TO PLAY
In Chapel Recital. Carl Weinrich, University chapel organist, will give a recital in memory of Helena Woolworth McCann Sunday at 3:30 in the chapel. Mrs. McCann gave the chapel organ to the University.

Mr. Weinrich's program will consist of Sweelinck's Variations on "Mein junges Leben hat ein End," Buxtehude's Prelude, Fugue and Chaconne in C and his "Wie schoen leuchtet der Morgenstern"; Grigny's Fugue on "A solis ortus"; Byrd's Variations on "Will ye we walke the woodes soe wilde"; and Bach's Fantasy and Fugue in G minor, the chorale prelude, "Allein Gott in der Hoh" and the Toccata and Fugue in D minor.

In the course of his winter tour, which will begin with an appearance in Phiharmonic Hall in New York, Mr. Weinrich will travel in the far west, performing on the new organ in the chapel of the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs. Mr. Weinrich was on the committee that advised the Academy in the choice of its organ.

Westminster Records will release this month a three-volume set of Bach recorded by Mr. Weinrich in Sweden, a set which includes the Eighteen Great Chorales and the six Schuebler Chorales. Next month, RCA Victor and the Reader's Digest Record Club will offer Mr. Weinrich's volume of 19th-century organ music recorded in Symphony Hall, Boston.

TICKETS, ANYONE?
Gilbert & Sullivan Ready. Tickets are now on sale at the McCarter box-office and will be available at the door of 10 McCosh for those who want to hear "An Evening of Gilbert &

Sullivan" from 8:30 next Thursday in the 10 McCosh auditorium.

Postponed because of the death of President Kennedy, the "Evening" has been designed to offer the best-loved songs of G. & S. from the various productions of the Savoyards of Princeton. Those who will sing are Lee H. Bristol Jr., Warren Dodson, Debbie Truxel, George Gallup Jr., Viola Ponisi, Janet Thorsen, Mary Alice Willy and William Lockwood Jr. A. Munroe Wade will be guest narrator.

JAZZ QUARTET COMING
January 17 to McCarter. The Modern Jazz Quartet, cited as "a microcosm of the modern jazz scene," will give its first Princeton concert on Friday, January 17, in McCarter, as part of the theatre's January Jubilee.

Ralph J. Gleason, jazz critic and author of the foregoing comment, has said of the group: "Within it are all the elements of importance affecting modern jazz — reaffirmation of the debt to the blues, intelligent use of classical devices and harmonies, and a choice of repertoire or original tunes and ballads."

The Quartet has appeared "classically" with several symphony orchestras here and abroad and string quartets, as well as playing at the usual clubs and jazz festivals. As such, the 12-year-old group was a forerunner in destroying many barriers between the traditional and jazz concert stages.

PURCELL IS NEXT
For Musical Amateurs. "Dido and Aeneas," by Purcell, will be the next project for the Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs. The group will gather Sunday at 5 in the Woolworth Center of Musical Studies on the University Campus.

The director of chorus and orchestra will be Barbara Lewis and the soloists will be Thelma Young and Ellis Valentine, sopranos; Barbara Hilbish and Dorothy Stoddard, contraltos and Clarence Moore, tenor. Cynthia Hoebel will be the pianist.

Those who would like to sing the Purcell work are invited to attend, but arrangements should be made in advance with Mrs. MacKenty Bryan, WA 4-0453, between 2 and 5 p.m.

IT'S WARM-UP TIME
For Princeton Singers. Auditions will be held next Tuesday for singers who would like to join the Princeton Opera Association's second workshop of the season. The workshop itself will also begin that night. Singers who are interested should call Patience Hite, WA 1-2090, for a scheduled time to appear. Auditions will be held from 7 p.m. in the Methodist Church. Former workshop members are asked to note the change from Thursday to Tuesday evenings.

THE ROAD SOUTH
Shades of Linen, Moss and avocado, white with navy, navy with white, red with pink and blue with blue.

We're deciding which combination to choose for Elise Goupil's U-neck, sleeveless linen with the deep inverted pleat running down each side from waist to hem.

The problem of choice is just as difficult with a petal-collared dress, cut with short sleeves and piped with contrasting color and with the short-sleeved linen sketched with parallel lines that form an arrow pattern on the bodice. We saw this last one in palest avocado with olive lines.

A navy linen has a one-inch white band around the U neck, continuing down the left side all the way to the hem, Going Anywhere?

If "Nassau" to you means Route 27 and not the British West Indies, you'll want to look over the "little suit" collection at Elise Goupil.

Miss Goupil is firmly convinced that some Princeton women remain right here all winter, and with these tough-fibred souls in mind, she has assembled a few light-weight English wool suits to lift the spirits into spring.

Pale greys, pale blues, pale beige tones, executed in small geometric prints, quiet and conservative. Some have little collars, some have round necks, most of them have jersey popovers to provide an extra layer if the spring wind is a bit too British.

with a self button and a navy loop catching the eye, about six inches above the knee. This dress comes in about 15 different color combinations.

Tweedy Belgian linen makes a crush-proof dress with a round neck and a curving line of navy fringe down both sides of the front. A slub rayon has an overblouse over the chemise top of a skirt, and a box jacket with trim lapel collar.

Flowers and scrolls have been appliqued on a linen dress which we saw in pale powder blue. Bright melon rayon linen has a narrow trapunto "rope" down the edge of the jacket. "Millions of other colors," says Miss Goupil.

Incidentally, where color choice is available, allow about a week or ten days for delivery.

On the silk side, we like a raw Thai suit in quivering sapphire blue with a Kelly green silk overblouse, Kelly piping down the Chanel jacket and Kelly banding around the kick pleat of the sapphire skirt. Solid colors of salmon or jade, also, but that blue and green . . . !

Big bright carnations and roses splash you right in the eye. The dress is simplicity itself — slim and U-necked. A powder-royal blue print on white has just a pat for a sleeve, and an Empire bodice outlined by powder-royal ribbon.

If you prefer heavier silk, there is an ivory colored dress with smudgy poppies overlaid by four-inch white snowflakes. A cummerbund restrains them all.

And, of course, "little" dresses by McMullen, with sweaters for air-conditioned dining rooms, and pale yellow daisies to remind you that spring will come soon, up north.

examined the Princeton Housing Authority's detailed site plan, reaffirmed its approval in principle but asked Architect Kenneth Kessler to come back on January 21 with a definite design for Spruce Street.

The Board also announced that the public hearing on Mr. LaPlaca's plans to subdivide the same property would be held on February 4.

Mr. Kessler presented the site plan and specifications he had prepared for the 50 units. His plans provide 16 efficiency apartments, 30 one-bedroom units and four two-bedroom units in the "garden apartment" style, with no public corridors or public stairways, and no need for janitorial service.

With a community center for games, meetings, family gatherings and the like, and a housing project office, the 50 units cover 19.5 percent of the land involved. This is 5 1/2 percent less, Mr. Kessler pointed out, than the zoning ordinance requires.

Mr. Kessler also suggested moving Spruce Street about 100 feet north of its proposed extension as shown on the Master Plan map, so that elderly residents would not have to cross a thoroughfare to reach another part of the project. His suggested relocation would bring Spruce out to Harrison Street within about 125-130 feet of Hamilton Avenue.

The Planning Board is not happy about this and asked Mr. Kessler to rearrange his units so that Spruce Street will end not in an intersection with Harrison Street but in a cul-de-sac within the housing project.

Thomas P. Cook, attorney for the Housing Authority, read to the Planning Board a resolution stating the Authority's intention to acquire the property "by negotiated sale if possible, or eminent domain proceedings if necessary."

Use Variance Needed, Mr. Cook said the Authority planned to ask the Zoning Board on January 23 to recommend a use variance to Mayor and Council at Council's February meeting, if Planning Board approval were forthcoming.

Then William Baggett, attorney for Charles LaPlaca, owner of the property, repeated his "most strenuous objection" to the Authority's appearance before either Planning or Zoning Boards because he said the Authority did not have enough proprietary interest in the land to make a formal presentation to the Planning Board.

LETTER MAN: John L. Dilworth has been recommended for the job of Acting Postmaster of Princeton by Congressman Frank Thompson, pending civil service examinations for the post which will be held later in the year. A native of Princeton, Mr. Dilworth was graduated from Princeton High School in 1932. He came to the Princeton post office in 1943 and has served as street carrier, rural carrier, window clerk and sorting clerk. At present, he is Accounting Assistant. Mr. Dilworth lives at 22 Stanley Avenue. (Staff Photo)

He also said that the Authority's plans represented a Board and this would set back major subdivision because of the Authority's time-table.

In reply, Mr. Cook said he had been advised by Gordon Griffin, Borough attorney, that it was perfectly proper for the Authority to appear before both Planning and Zoning Boards. He characterized the Authority as an "arm of government," acting under instructions from the Federal Public Housing Administration, and therefore different from a private person with an interest in buying a piece of land.

Mr. Cook said he had been told that Superior Court would decide on February 21 whether to issue an injunction preventing the Authority from appearing before Borough bodies. Mr. Baggett has asked the court for such an order. The Authority has asked the court three times to dismiss Mr. Baggett's request, but apparently the judge is "waiting to see what one private — to draw water happens," in Mr. Cook's words.

At the start of Tuesday's session, the Board elected Bryan Moore chairman, replacing Webster Dodge who will be moving from Princeton by the end of 1964. Mayor Henry Patterson said he was delighted that Princeton was the kind of town where a Democrat, like Mr. Moore, could serve in a Republican administration.

WE MEET, BRIEFLY

Township Committee, Only half an hour of business occupied the new Township Committee Monday night. Acting Mayor Carl C. Schafer Jr. presided in the absence of the new mayor, William L. Wilson.

The Committee heard a letter from the Elizabethtown Water Company asking permission to drill a test well on the footpath between Rosedale and Edgemoor Road. Frank Quinby, Township Engineer, said the company might want to build a brick pump house there, similar to the one on Harrison Street, if the well turns out to be productive. The request was tabled until Committee could confer with water company representatives.

A public hearing will be held next Thursday in Trenton on the request of three water companies — two municipal and one private — to draw water from the Delaware and Raritan Canal. The Princeton Water Company would like to take two million gallons a day from Franklin and Smith Brunswick. Township would like even more. Lawrence Township will be subject at the hearing because it fears that any withdrawal of water will leave its potential industrial areas low and dry. Princeton Township's new Committeeman, Russell Mount, volunteered to attend on Thursday as Township representative.

Committee decided to accept with pleasure a 3 1/2 acre plot for recreation in the new Sh-

Mr. Foster and Mr. Green will serve on the Joint Committee on Municipal Operations ("consolidation") and Mr. Wilson on the Joint Library Committee.

Gordon Griffin will continue as attorney for both municipalities. Theodore T. Tams Jr. will continue as Borough magistrate and James S. Hill as Township magistrate.

"NO COMMENT"

From Eric Goldman. The question of Eric Goldman's possible appointment as Special Assistant to President Johnson remained unanswered this week as Dr. Goldman smilingly repeated, "I have no comment to make."

Rumors persist in Washington and in Princeton that Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr. will leave his White House job as Special Assistant to the President, and that Dr. Goldman will be named in his place. The Princeton University historian visited Princeton University recently at The White House.

An authority on American history, Dr. Goldman won the Bancroft Prize in 1952 for his book, "Rendezvous With Destiny: A History of Modern American Reform." His book, "The Crucial Decade: America, 1945-55," was well-received by critics and public in 1956. He has been moderator of the television program, "Open Mind" for several years.

Railroad Station on University Place. Seven tires were flattened by letting the air escape.

Suitcases Stolen. Brian Dickson, Joline Hall, a University student returning after the holidays, reported that two of his suitcases containing personal effects were stolen 12:45 a.m. Monday from the Palmer Square bus stop. He was unable to give police any figures concerning their value.

Mr. Dickson had carried the largest of three suitcases to his room. When he returned to get the other two, they were gone. A second theft victim was Pablo Savia, 60 Stockton Street, an exchange student from Cuba. He told police that a German wristwatch and an engagement ring, each valued at approximately $100, were stolen Monday from his trousers in the locker room of the Princeton Seminary Gymnasium. He had changed clothes to play basketball, he told police.

YOUTH SERIOUSLY HURT
Carleton Saunders, 18, of 12 Berrien Court is in serious condition in Princeton Hospital's intensive care unit after being hit on the head with a shovel during a fight on Leigh Avenue Friday night. Saunders, who is reported as showing some improvement, is suffering from multiple head injuries and a possible fracture of the skull.

His alleged antagonist, Melvin J. Best, 19, of 118 Leigh Avenue was jailed following the fight. Best was arraigned before Township Magistrate James S. Hill Monday on a charge of atrocious assault and battery, the case was referred to the Mercer County grand jury, and Best was immediately transferred to the county jail.

The attack on Saunders was made in front of two Township police officers who had stopped to break up a fight between Olindo Tunc, a Princeton Township police officer that

TWO ARE INJURED
Falling on Ice Walks. Repeated warnings by police of what can happen if ice sidewalks are not cleaned or sand-ed were borne out last week. Mrs. Hope Harder, 22, 76 Battle Road, slipped on an icy sidewalk Sunday evening while walking on Mercer Road near Olden Lane. Knocked unconscious, she was taken by the Rescue Squad to Princeton Hospital where it was reported she had received a cerebral concussion. Mrs. Harder was unconscious for some time but the hospital later reported her condition to be satisfactory.

At 7:15 Thursday morning, Ralph H. Lippincott, 52, 694 Ewing Street, slipped and fell in front of the First Presbyterian Church, fracturing his hip. Police said the sidewalk had been cleared but its surface had refrozen during the night.

TWO CARS LEAVE ROAD
In Separate Accidents. Accidents which wrecked their cars ruined the holidays for two drivers here. James W. Moore, 53, Somerville Road, Princeton, began 1964 on the wrong foot when his car went into a skid on State Road on New Year's Day. His left ankle was fractured and his head and tongue injured in the mishap. Township police reported that Solution Offered.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Everyone must agree with Dr. Rothberg's letter in your last issue and his concern over Princeton's antiquated schools. But surely, Sir, a solution stands before us as real and practical as an educator's face.

For consider: As these decaying structures become progressively less usable, the school board has only to go on selling them to the University. Dilapidated or not, they exhibit no worse or more numerous architectural clichés than what the University itself is now building, nor are they, like the new Engineering School, larger than their lots; and above all, time has demonstrated that they do not sink into the ground.

Moreover, University policy in general would be furthered by such acquisitions — Mr. Test's office could be adorned by at least one new sub-department; still more maintenance workers and in particular still more executive assistants, clerks, stenographers, etc., could be hired, and in a word Mr. Mestres's presumed goal of filling the campus with administrative instead of teaching staff would be so much the nearer. This in turn should have the most happy effect on alumni giving: whatever else may be said of us, we alumni, like any other hard-headed practical businessmen, set great store by the ability to meet a payroll, it will be a relief to many of us to see our Alma Mater finally putting first things first, too.

The school board must, however, act promptly: time may indeed, in Dr. Rothberg's phrase, be running out. A year from now, if the Creator is properly sensitive to local prayer, we may have a Republican administration in Washington, in which event any informed alumnus must hope that Mr. Mestres, like many a stalwart team-mate before him, will be opted from among us into The Nation's Service, with Princeton's loss the late Mr. Dulles's gain. And if then, Sir, the University's administrative staff were in consequence to be deparkinsonized, this present golden opportunity would have been lost forever.

"An Utter Disgrace."

To the Editor of Town Topics:
Following is the text of an open letter to the Princeton Township Committee:

The apparent decision on the part of Princeton Township to continue to neglect the western end of Pretty Brook Road is a bad one, and most unfair to the area residents and others who use the road. This stretch of dirt road is an utter disgrace to this, or any other, self-respecting township.

In dry weather, bone-jarring pot holes and dust clouds are the order of the day. The situation is so bad that in wet weather, a motorist can get stuck in the mud while driving down the center of the road.

If you think this is an exaggeration, I assure you that it is not. It has happened, and doubtless will happen again unless proper action is taken. I find it difficult to believe that Township finances are in such dire distress that such a deplorable state of repairs must persist for so many years. You have shirked your responsibility for too long!

It is the clear and present duty of Princeton Township to bring this road into a permanent state of repair commensurate with its other roads. For the taxes that are levied, we have a right to expect something better.

Public Participation Needed.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I would like to publicly commend Mayor Patterson for his New Year's Message. He has set forth clearly a number of problems facing the Borough whose solutions will involve many hours of hard work and patience by our elected officials.

Most especially I would like to commend him for urging citizens to take more interest in local affairs. This is a very vital part of our form of self-government, especially at the local level. It is noteworthy that in the same issue there is a letter from Dr. Rothberg warning us against complacency and the effect this can have on the future development of the community.

It is true that in the past there has not been as much citizen participation in local affairs as there might have been, the bulk of the work being done by a small, hard-working and dedicated group of individuals. In many areas the attitude of the functioning group has become proprietary rather than welcoming to outside interest. New viewpoints have not been solicited as much as they might have been.

It should be possible to exchange different opinions and views while still maintaining good personal relationships. Often this has not been the case and in a small community it becomes more and more difficult to express views differing from the "official" ones.

Another reason for lack of citizen participation is due perhaps to a sense of frustration. Many decisions seem to be based on individual agreements made in advance through personal contact rather than through the governing channels. Sometimes the individual citizen feels it is useless and unnecessary to express his views since he thinks the decision has already been made — so why bother?

However, I personally still think it is worth trying. There must be many others in our governing bodies, in addition to Mayor Patterson, who would welcome more interest from the public. It is up to the electors as well as the elected to keep their eyes and minds open and to speak up when necessary on the various impending issues which can so critically affect the future of Princeton.

Once Upon A Time

there was a young man who loved books. Not always the kind of books he had to read, but always the kind of books he wanted to read or even just to see or to know about. A very, very old lady told the young man that if he met the right books he could travel the whole world without buying a ticket or leaving home (unless he was lucky enough to). The some wonderful old lady (who remembered Abraham Lincoln and who baked the world's best cookies, knit the warmest mittens, and who knew God and everybody better than anybody the young man had ever known) knew that young people were very lucky but don't always realize it. Her funny little old glasses helped her see a lot of things, people and books, and The Book, and the people.

MANY YEARS LATER . . .

the young man married a young girl who loved books. Not always the kind of books she had to read, but always the kind of books she wanted to read or even just to see or to know about. Most of her time and her interest in books were wrapped up in her one . . . two . . . three . . . four young children who, of course, came to love books, too. Not always the kind of books they had to read, but always the kind of books that somebody read to them or that they learned to read for themselves, or that they just wanted to see or know about. So . . .

THEY ALL DECIDED . . .

to open a little shop where everybody who might love books could meet more and more of them. Not the books they had to read, but always the kind of books they wanted to read or even just to see or to know about. And they persuaded Smoky (he's the grandfather of the one . . . two . . . three . . . four young children) and who's called Smoky because of the smoke from that pipe he puffs while reading all those books (not the books he has to read, but always the kind of books he wants to read or to be able to tell other people about), well, they persuaded Smoky to help out with all the young people and the older people who came to this friendly little book shop.

AND EVERY DAY . . .

and every evening, too, because they knew that lots of people who love books are in school or working or cooking or traveling or busy doing lots of other important things during the daytime, they turn on the bright, bright lights and fill the shelves with many, many wonderful books. And most of the people just look and look and look at books. And some ask questions. And some wonder what might be a good book to send to a friend who's sick or far, far away or having some important day in his life. And some talk about the books they've learned to love and the books they want to read. And every day . . .

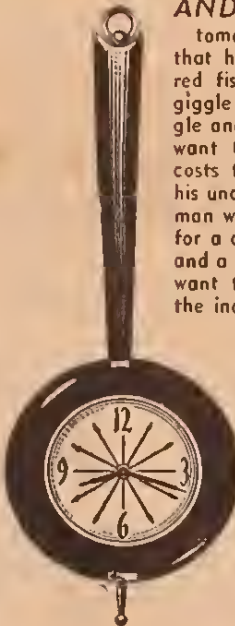

THE STORY CHANGES . . .

because some of the books people want were written many, many years ago but are now in wonderful new paper books; and because some of the books were just brand new books written yesterday; and because a lot of books are being written tomorrow. And because everybody likes different books.

AND THAT IS WHY . . .

tomorrow a little boy will tell Smoky that he wants to see one fish two fish red fish blue fish and a little girl will giggle while she reads Mrs. Piggle-Wiggle and a big boy who loves football will want the book about The Game that costs too much and he'll decide to tell his uncle about it and a very happy young man will burst through the door and ask for a copy of What to Name Your Baby and a worried man with a brief case will want to see the big yellow book about the income tax and the happy lady with the airplane ticket will want to see the books about Puerto Rico and the handsome young man ask to put some pretty paper around a pretty little book that says that Love is a Special Way of Feeling and two little boys will run through the door and reach up high enough to get lemon drops and run out again and an older boy will take away a book about a brave young man in a PT boat with the number 109.

AND THAT IS ALSO WHY . . .

one man wants Stories of New Jersey because it's New Jersey's 300th birthday and another man wants a scary story about how the world came to an end and the same man buys a big black book about how the world began and a pretty lady with lots of little children likes the book that is 365 Ways to Cook Hamburger and the man with the big black automobile will buy a pretty big book about a famous man named Toscanini and two men talk for a long time about a little book called The Other America and so many things happen all the time that the story never really ends except that we think there is no reason to doubt that with all these wonderful books, then all these wonderful people WILL LIVE HAPPILY EVER AFTER.

CHAMBER ELECTS FRANK
Engstrom "Man-of-the-Year." Alan G. Frank, vice-president and treasurer of Langrock Princeton Inc., is the new president of the Greater Princeton Chamber of Commerce and Civic Council. Other officers of the organization for 1964 are Albridge C. Smith III and Arthur N. Curtiss, vice-presidents, and George J. Adriance, treasurer.

Officers and the board of directors were among the 200-plus who attended the GPCC's annual dinner-dance and meeting on Saturday. Dr. Elmer W. Engstrom, president of RCA and Princeton resident, was honored by being named Princeton's "Man-of-the-Year" by the organization.

Mr. Frank succeeds Robert P. Popino of American Cyanamid's research center as chamber president. Mr. Popino was named to the position last April to fill out the unexpired term of Jean Pierre Meyer, now head of Bamberger's Morristown.

Mr. Smith is a lawyer and currently heads Princeton Hospital's new building fund. Mr. Curtiss is manager of administration for the RCA Laboratories, and Mr. Adriance is a vice-president of Princeton Bank and Trust Co.

Joining the chamber's board of directors for three-year terms are Ralph H. Mather, president of First National Bank of Princeton, and Glen R. Simmons, director of Western Electric's engineering re-

Re-elected as directors were Dan D. Coyle, Princeton University executive and co-editor and co-publisher of TOWN TOPICS; George R. Cook III, Princeton Bank and Trust board chairman, and S. Philip Marcus, Food Machinery Corp. manager of technical services. As immediate past president, Mr. Popino also continues as a GPCC director, and Mr. Frank will name three directors-at-large to serve one-year terms.

The Princeton Chamber had 216 members in 1963, and 80 have already paid dues for 1964, it was announced. An active membership drive will take place in February, according to Mr. Frank.

During 1964 the chamber expects to see a revision of present parking regulations in the central business district. Mr. Frank said. A new ordinance on the revision is now under study by the Borough council and is based on potential changes suggested by chamber members and others.

"We expect an excellent progress report on Princeton's new post office this year," Mr. Frank stated. A chamber committee has held several encouraging conferences with postal officials during the past year on the subject, and, according to word received by TOWN TOPICS from Rep. Frank Thompson, "we hope to have definite word on a new

Question of the Week

Question: Senator Goldwater has announced that he is a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination. What do you think his chances are?

Where asked: Palmer Square.

Joseph W. Hoffman, River Road, Belle Mead, retired: I think his chances are very good. He's a conservative and it's my opinion he can do a lot for this country in the form of cutting down the cost of government spending which is extravagant. Taxes are way above what they should be for a good sound economy.

Mrs. J.B. Anderson, 172 Red Hill Road, housewife: I'm not too much on politics but I hope his chances are good. I admire him. He's a conservative; I feel we need more of them because I think we are too liberal in our spending.

David Landman, 31 S. Stanworth, development office, administration, Princeton University: I don't think they're too good. I think he was running in front so long as it looked as if he was going against Kennedy, but he doesn't talk as well in Texas and the whole southwest as President Johnson does. Therefore, his early lead has been wiped out and it doesn't look as if he will ever regain it. Goldwater is a good campaigner but so is Rockefeller. So are a lot of other dark horses we will be hearing about this summer.

Dan Virgil, Trenton, sales manager for Kase Kleaners, Nassau Street: Darn good. The man's background, what he stands for. Conservatism. There's a helluva lot of it in the country. He's an outstanding figurehead. I associate him strongly with Kennedy even though they were members of opposite parties: his carriage, his approach, his background, his breeding—all like Kennedy. I think more of Goldwater than anyone else in the Republican party. Definitely. If I weren't a Democrat, I'd vote for him myself.

Mrs. Lydia Allen, Brunswick Pike, housewife: Just from what I've read, I think he stands a good chance. The fact that he's a conservative I don't think will hurt him.

Richard Giffin, Trenton, credit manager, American Finance Co., Witherspoon Street: His Chances are supposedly better than Rockefeller's. That's the opinion that has reached my ears. For myself, he is a little too much on the conservative side. I wouldn't want to see him as President—which, again, you might say is a popular opinion of Goldwater.

Alfred DeGrazia, 12 Chestnut Street, retired music teacher and conductor: No chance at all. In the first place, I don't think his training for the presidency has been sufficient, according to my idea of the presidency. It is one of the greatest jobs in the world; a man has to be like Kennedy—well educated, well traveled. I think a lot of people will bring religion into it because of his name, although he doesn't follow Jewish beliefs. Still, it will hurt him some. He might be a good fellow but there are so many better men in the Republican party more qualified to be president. I'd like to see Lodge get it. My second choice would be Thurston Morton.

Miss Nancy VanDeventer, 133 Mansgrove Road, secretary: I think a lot will depend on how the Republican candidates act and run their campaigns for the nomination. I don't think anyone has a decided edge; I wouldn't count Goldwater or anyone out right now. But I think Goldwater is going to have to work awfully hard. And I still doubt if he'll get it. I think the fact that he's of a split religion has a lot to do with it. You don't hear people talking about it but I still think they will be influenced by it. I think the assassination of President Kennedy—coming as it did just a year before the election—has had a great deal to do with this country's thinking.

Andrew Fiddler, Patton Hall, University senior: I don't think they're very good. I'd say either Rockefeller or Scranton has a slightly better chance than Goldwater. Of the three, Goldwater's is the poorest because the party will naturally want to pick someone who can win and Goldwater won't get enough independent votes. I don't think he can carry enough states. He might get a lot of popular votes across the nation but I don't think any single state would go conservative—none with the large number of electoral votes such as New York, California, Pennsylvania. And that's the only way a candidate can win. His chances are better than Nixon's though. Nixon is out; he's lost twice.

Jerome S. Gildar, 12 Shady Brook Lane, researcher: If Rockefeller and Goldwater are the only Republican candidates, I think Rockefeller will carry it. The greatest number of young people in the history of the United States born during World War II, who will be able to vote in 1964, are not concerned with the conservative element. Nor do I think they will be. They will be thinking more toward a liberal candidate such as Rockefeller. If Nixon were to run I think he would get the nod over both Rockefeller and Goldwater.

Bebel Petritz, Cranbury Road, Princeton Junction, retired physician: I'm against Goldwater. He's too conservative and I think he is involved, indirectly, with the John Birch Society. I don't think he's the man for this country, definitely not. I'm against Rockefeller because of his remarriage. I don't see any worthwhile Republican candidate.

Mrs. Bebel Petritz, Cranbury Road, Princeton Junction, housewife: Very slim because he's too reactionary. And I think he's about 200 years behind in his thinking on foreign policy. I think Nixon has the best chance to be nominated. But new people will appear because they think they have a better chance now to be elected. They didn't think they had much of a chance against Kennedy so they didn't mind that men like Goldwater were around. All that has changed.

SKIRMISHING ENDS

As Ivy Title Battle Nears, With one of the two biggest games of the Ivy Basketball League season confronting them this weekend, Princeton's defending champions will play the final 14 games of their regular schedule seeking a second straight title.

A major question mark as to their ability to handle their chief challenger will be answered Saturday night when the Tigers play host to a veteran, well-balanced Yale quintet. Last winter, the Elis won in Dillon Gym, 62-61, and any such repetition will do major damage to Princeton plans for another Ivy crown.

The Orange and Black's first Ivy game of the winter will be played here Friday at 3 against Brown. Saturday's sellout will begin at the same hour.

There is little similarity between the Tigers' two opponents. No better than 6-8 on the season a year ago, the Bruins were not figured to cause much trouble even before they had the misfortune to lose Alan Young, one of their top players, for the season with a severe knee injury suffered in a Christmas tournament.

Captain Fran Driscoll, a 5-10 guard, sophomore Al Milanesi, another good shot from the back court; and 6-6 Dave Tarr are Brown's principal scoring threats. A 98-64 victim of Yale at Providence last month, the Rhode Island quintet is 4-6 on the season.

Elis Tall and Tough. Of the Yale team that Princeton defeated, 65-53, in the Ivy play-off at Fordham last March, all top five players are back. Chief gun is Rick Kaminsky, agile, experienced and a fine shot from anywhere within 25 feet of the basket.

Captain Dennis Lynch and junior Bob Trupin give the Elis a veteran backcourt pair, while Dave Schumacher and Don Taylor, both 6-6, are the big men who camp under the basket. Yale is extremely rugged and capable under the boards, and rebounding ability Saturday will tell much of the story.

The Elis are 6-5 on the season, three of their defeats coming during a holiday tournament at Los Angeles against some of the best teams in the nation. Off Kaminsky's rating as one of the Ivy's best, plus their height and scoring balance, they rank at least as equal favorites with Princeton for the 1964 title.

The Blue will be at the Palestra Friday night to meet a young but promising Penn quintet, with trouble brewing if the Elis look ahead to Saturday night's game. The return contest between Princeton and Yale at New Haven is set for February 22.

BRADLEY ROLLS ON

But Mates Remain Uneven. Two more fine performances by Bill Bradley marked Princeton's final non-league games last week, but after a dozen contests there was still no one player who could score with him consistently in double figures. It is that sort of imbalance which gives Princetonians cause for concern with the league season at hand and nothing close to a replacement for the graduated Art Hyland on the horizon.

Following the Tigers' 84-71 upset of Texas in the first round at Charlotte, N. C., they were pulverized by nationally-ranked Davidson, 102 to 68. The three-figure total by the southerners—rated seventh in the U.S.—was not a record score against Princeton, however; in 1957, Illinois racked up 108 against a Tiger quintet.

Bradley added 30 to the 46 he made against Texas and was voted the top player in the tournament. But as Coach Bill van Breda Kolff said after Davidson placed five players in double figures, "five good men will always beat one very good man."

In St. Louis Friday night, a somewhat ordinary Washington University team was walloped by the touring Tigers, 85 to 50. Bradley getting 31 before some 6,000 fellow Missourians who cheered every move he made. His six straight points at the beginning got the Tigers off to an early lead, and they were ahead by ten to 15 during most of the first half.

It was 37-24 at the intermission. Bradley again had better than half his team's points

Bradley on All-East Team

To no one's surprise, Bill Bradley is a member of the season's first weekly All-East basketball team selected by the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

The 6-5 Princetonian was chosen on a basis of the 107 points he poured through the basket in three games last week: 46 against Texas, the Southwestern Conference champion which the Tigers upset, 84-71; 30 against Davidson and 31 against Washington University. His 31-point average in 12 games ranks him among the top five scorers nationally.

his effortless, superb all-around play.

Sophomores Ed Stenbe and Bob Haarlow had respective totals of 11 and 10, but the first dozen games on the schedule have failed to produce a firm quartet to go with Bradley. Among the problems is the slowness of Don Roth, a month late in reporting because of the football season, in rounding into the form that won him a starting assignment a year ago.

After the games this weekend, the team faces Cornell at Ithaca and Columbia at New York prior to the two-week break for exams. A well-regarded Cornell five will be no easy mark on its home court; in fact, the Tigers suffered one of their three defeats there last winter when Hyland was hobbled by a bad ankle.

Much of the early standings in the race will be determined by Saturday's game with Yale, with the Elis becoming almost prohibitive favorites if they win. If the Tigers triumph, it will be largely a question of which of the two favorites does better on the road.

SKATERS SWAMPED

By Clarkson, St. Lawrence. Few teams beat Clarkson and St. Lawrence on their own ice, and Princeton followed the rule last weekend when it lost to these hockey powers by respective scores of 13-3 and 8-3. The Tigers were at Ithaca Wednesday night of this week for their Ivy opener with Cornell, will be in Baker Rink Saturday at 2 to face the St. Nicks and head for Troy, N. Y., next Wednesday for a game with Rensselaer Poly.

An eight-goal second period blew the game open at Potsdam Friday night, Clarkson showing complete superiority throughout the contest. At Canton the following night, St. Lawrence moved out to a 3-0 lead in the first round before Pony Fraker got the Tigers' first goal by driving home a rebound while the home team had a man in the penalty box.

Goalie Dick Reece had a rough night in the nets, making only 20 saves on 28 shots as he needed more protection than he got from the inexperienced Princeton defense. After a dozen games in the St. Lawrence rivalry, Princeton is still looking for its first victory.

OLYMPIC SIX HERE

Plays Two Exhibitions. The 17-man squad which will represent the United States in Olympic hockey competition this winter at Innsbruck, Austria, played two abbreviated exhibition games New Year's night in Baker Rink. A crowd of about 1,000 saw the Americans defeat the St. Nicks, 6-3, and Princeton, 6-2, each contest lasting 30 minutes.

Johnny Cook, three-time All-Ivy forward who graduated from Princeton last June, scored one of the St. Nicks' goals and assisted on another. Cook skates on a line with Harry Rulon-Miller, former Princeton captain, with Middlebury's Pete Bostwick the center and this trio will give the varsity a hatful of trouble Saturday.

Steve Cook, sophomore forward on one of the three lines Norm Wood uses for Princeton, assisted on the first goal the Tigers scored against the Olympics. The latter, playing their third exhibition in as many nights and finishing a rigorous training schedule, were obviously tired. The crowd sensed it came away somewhat disappointed but enjoyed a number of the spectacular power plays the Olympics staged in scoring their 12 goals.

The U.S. team is not figured to repeat the Olympic triumph it recorded in an upset four years ago at Squaw Valley, Calif.—not because it is weaker than its predecessor but because at least four of the other teams appear to be considerably stronger than they were in 1960. Russia, Sweden, Czechoslovakia and Canada are all rated better than the Americans.

BANTAM SKATERS LOSE

Warwick All-Stars Win, 3-1. After going into a 1-0 lead on a first-period goal by Evan Donaldson, Princeton's Bantam All-Stars lost their opening hockey game of the season on Saturday to the War-

300 YEARS OF PROGRESS

New Jersey is truly a great state. Over the period of its 300 years' existence, its people with their God-given advantages have created an industrial-agricultural complex second to none. It is a powerful component of our national economy.
It has an ever brightening future vested in the rapid growth of its applied and basic research facilities and expansion of its industrial and agricultural operations.

During this year of celebration we urge all the people of the state to reflect upon the history of New Jersey — what made it great; why it is still great; and how it will become even greater.
And when at the World's Fair be certain to visit the New

Eugene Gratlan, 47, of Morrisville, Pa., was issued a summons for careless driving when his car failed to make a curve on Quaker Road, Mr. Gratlan was uninjured.

After traveling 55 feet on the shoulder of the road, his car struck a four-strand, barbed-wire fence. It leveled five posts and some 70 feet of fence and then continued on another 240 feet before coming to rest in a field of the Updike Farm on Quaker Road.

No Fatalities Again. All the traffic news from the Township is not bad, however. Chief James B. Campbell Jr. reports the Township has just ended its second consecutive year without a traffic fatality. "That hasn't happened before since I've been here," the Chief continued, "and that will be 28 years this spring." In 1961, the Township had four traffic fatalities.

Milnor—double-parked in the process of picking up her children from the Gardeo Theater—to move on, Mrs. Milnor did but only a few feet farther. This didn't satisfy Officer Lewis who began issuing tickets to the protesting Mrs. Milnor.

In court Monday, Borough Magistrate Theodore T. Tams Jr. fined Mrs. Milnor $15 each on charges of: failing to comply with an officer's signal, taking on passengers in a roadway, and obstructing the passage of other vehicles. In addition, he revoked her license 15 days. Mrs. Milnor pleaded guilty to all charges.

For careless driving, Miss Ann V. Melody, 20, 56 Pine Street; Mrs. Milla G. Gardner, 50, 180 Nassau Street; and David E. Ott, 17, 99 Braeburn Drive, were fined $15 each with the latter's license also being revoked 10 days. Miss Melody denied the violation.

In other cases, Goro Bepp, 36, 221-A Eisenhower Street, and Frederic L. Chase, 26, Lawrenceville School, paid fines of $12 and $30 for respective red light and speeding violations. In criminal court, Walter Daniels, 25, of Trenton, pleaded guilty to assault and was fined $60. The complainant was Carol Ann Gilbert of Princeton.

Special Session Held. A special session of court was conducted by Magistrate Tams Friday to accommodate students who had to return to school.

Peter F. Morse, 18, 40 Battle Road, was fined $30 and had his license revoked 30 days for speeding. Robert W. Green, 19, 3 Pierson Place, Hopewell, paid $12 for disregarding an officer's signal, a charge he denied.

Careless driving charges brought fines of $20 and $15 against John Graham, 32, 108 Westerly Road, and James R. Kerney, 17, 65 Palmer Square. In addition, Mr. Graham's license was revoked 30 days.

Judge Tams also recommended to the Motor Vehicle Department that there be a 90-day revocation when Mr. Kerney applies for a permanent license. At the time of the accident in which he was involved, Mr. Kerney had been driving on a learner's permit which had been valid only two days. Both pleaded guilty.

TOPIC: ALCOHOLISM

Luncheon Panel to Meet. Charles Jackson, author of "The Lost Weekend," will be a member of a panel which will discuss "Community Methods for Reaching Problem Drinkers," on January 22. The health committee of the Princeton Council of Community Services will sponsor the luncheon and panel discussion, to be held at 12:30 in the YM-YWCA. The panel will be composed of leading authorities in such specialized fields as research, treatment and education on the subject of alcoholism. Moderator will be William Ferguson, director of field services, The National Council on Alcoholism.

Other panel members will be: Dr. Selden D. Bacon, director, Rutgers Center of Alcohol Studies; the Rev. Father Frederick Lawrence; Mrs. Marjorie Buchanan, director, Alcoholism Treatment Center, Donnelly Memorial Hospital.

Among the topics to be discussed will be the need for a consultation service in Princeton for alcoholics, their families and employers. Alcoholism is known to be a major health problem and therefore is, according to authorities, a public responsibility for community action.

Tickets for the luncheon and panel discussion are $1.50. Advance reservations may be made through January 16 at the Council of Community Service, 4 Green Street, phone: WA 4-5882.

The blind Mr. Schultz, writing phonetically by touch on his typewriter, sent his greetings and his thanks this week to all the Princeton friends who contributed to what he calls a "joyous program."

Mr. Schultz reports that about 850 separate telephone calls came through to him, with brothers and sisters sharing many of the calls to make the 1,440 total. (Even parents, too!) Sometimes the phone began to ring at 7 a.m. Sometimes it was still ringing at 10 p.m.

PHS TOPS HIGHTSTOWN
Behind Shooting of Hines.

Playing in his first varsity game, Wilbur "Scratchy" Hines, a 5-9 sophomore, scored a game-high 16 points to lead Princeton High School to a decisive 62-42 victory here over Hightstown Tuesday afternoon.

Following the contest, coach Tony Borzok said that Hines henceforth would be a permanent member of the starting five.

During the holiday break, Borzok did a considerable amount of reshuffling and planning and his homework paid off in spades. "We changed our offense, defense and personnel around," he said, "and it looks now as if we had something that can run."

The offense employed by the Little Tigers with telling success was a familiar one — the fast break — but it was new in the sense that it was working for Princeton for the first time. "We weren't right for it before," said Tony. "This time we took the ball off the boards and we knew what we were doing."

Spearheading the break were Hines, co-captain Dave Hill and Kerry Klink. Hill hit for 12 points, Klink eight. The third member of the Blue and White to reach double figures was co-captain Tom Waters who connected for 11 points, eight in second quarter, to enable PHS to pull to a 46-25 halftime luge.

Waters Top Rebounder. But more important than his scoring was Waters' outstanding play under the boards, where he collared 20 rebounds. "For once, the boys under the boards realized they were working for something. They knew if they got the ball somebody would be there to take it down," said Tony.

A revamped starting five of Hines, Hill, Waters, Klink and Ron Pulling started and played together until the final few minutes. It was a team effort all the way, reported Borzok, who added that he was "certainly pleased for the boys."

The victory brought PHS even on the season at 2-2. More importantly, it brought a feeling that what had been missing before — an organized, fluid, fast-breaking attack — had now been found and that the Little Tigers were headed for continued prosperity. It would be hard to fault that belief Tuesday.

A pair of road games confront the Little Tigers next. They play Madison away Friday and next Tuesday go to Steinert for the first of a home-and-home series with that quintet.

Bridgewater - Raritan will provide the next home opposition for PHS. The game will be played Friday, January 17.

Skater's Lament
A January thaw
Makes me sooth.

Mild was the word for it these days, as Monday's reading touched 52—a surprising 20 degrees above freezing.

The trend will continue for a while, the Man said, although not quite as balmy as the early part of the week. Rain—not snow—is the Thursday forecast. Looking at the scene with some disgust was Old Man Winter, who promised halftfully, "I'll be back."

to hold St. Joachim's basketball team scoreless in the second period won for St. Paul's quintet Sunday in a CYO Grammar School League contest. The final score was 23 to 20.

Each team made four points in the first quarter, but St. Paul's added six in the second period while its opponents could not find the target. After a low-scoring third quarter, St. Joachim's rang up 13 points in the final round to 11 for St. Paul's, but the difference between the teams in the second quarter told the final story.

Italo Procaccino of the victors led both teams with 11 points. Others to score for St. Paul's included Mike Maguire, Tim Kerns, Fred Leuper and Jerry Fiabanc.

mentions particularly the Woman's Club of Princeton for "shaping up the program" and collecting the donations which help to stretch Mr. Schultz' pension during the year. More than 200 merchants contributed to Mr. Schultz' fund.

In addition, Santa sends his thanks to Princeton newspapers, its radio station and "the public in general, throughout New Jersey for allowing me to interrogate their happy, trusting little children." And a pleasant final note: "I found that 98 percent of the children were very polite and cooperative."

STUDY CENTER TO MOVE
To 16 John Street. The Princeton Study Center will re-locate its study hall at 16 John Street, a half block from Nassau Street, on Monday, January 20. The hall has been located in the Dorothea House.

The plumbing and heating division of American-Standard is providing the space without charge in the John Street building owned by Palmer Square, Inc. The building faces on the parking yard between John Street and Chambers Street.

The new facilities will include two rooms with individual desks for students. One room will be used solely for study and the other will be utilized for conferences between students and their study assistants. Thomas F. Caldwell, chairman of the study hall program, said the rooms are ideally suited to the center's needs.

American-Standard rented the building in 1960 for use as a training center for its personnel. Norman Lohouse, supervisor of the center, said it is his company's policy to serve community needs by making the building's quarters available.

Organized last February, the study hall program provides students in grades six through 12 with a quiet place to study and help with their homework. Robert Freidank, a student at Princeton Theological Seminary, is on hand each evening from 7 to 9 to supervise the hall and its volunteer staff.

LAWRENCE MAYOR SWORN
Healey to Head Government. Owen R. Healey, a Democrat, has been sworn in as mayor of Lawrence Township.

An eight-year member of the township committee, Mr. Healey was selected by the five-man governing body to succeed Lloyd A. Carver. Mr. Healey held the post in 1960 and 1961.

A native of Trenton, the 49-year-old mayor has served on the township planning board since 1952. He is currently the head of the department of public safety, a position he has held since 1957.

The second girl was delivered at Princeton Hospital 35 minutes later, Mayor Huddleson, in New York City on business when the twins were born, said they would be named Amy and Sarah.

News Of The CHURCHES

PASTOR INJURED

In Route 1 Accident, The Rev. Clarence K. Brixey, 28, pastor of Kingston Presbyterian Church, received a concussion and scalp injuries last week in a two-car collision on Route 1.

The accident, which involved a station wagon driven by Mrs. Judith H. Goldberg, 35, of Metuchen, occurred at the Ridge Road crossing in South Brunswick Township. Mrs. Goldberg and her six children were uninjured. The Rev. Mr. Brixey, alone in his car, was thrown against the right-hand door. His car was demolished.

The South Brunswick First Aid Squad took the clergyman to Princeton Hospital, where he was treated and released in care of his physician. Mrs. Goldberg was charged with passing a red light by Trooper Stephen Jablonowski.

Another student wrote: "I was so happy to have got the opportunity to spend such a nice evening, to dance with so many different girls, to be together with so many nice persons, to hear those good folksongs. WE NOMINATE feer. Building Inspector, Sanitary Engineer and Technical Adviser to the Planning Board.

The son and grandson of communications specialists in the New York City Fire Department, Cawley entered the Borough's employ in the summer of 1950. In the intervening years, initially under a Democratic Administration and since 1962 with the Republicans in control of Borough Hall, he has been exposed to almost every conceivable facet of Princeton's complexities, including the paradox which binds the majority of Princetonians of all vintages cherishing their community's semi-tutal heritage while insisting upon the equivalent of "piggy bank services" such as streets and parking yards and recreational and sewage facilities.

Cawley, the father of three, a 4-year Naval veteran and a graduate of the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn, was in the Chief Engineer's Department of the New York Telephone Company when called to Princeton. From that company's exacting training program, he had "moved into the field" and in a barren Long Island area, where telephones are counted by the 10's of 1,000's, was an engineering planner and trouble-shooter concerned with everything from the installation of underground conduit systems to relationships with municipalities. In the same period he made time for the management course in the City University of New York's Graduate School.

For relishing the opportunities for service which are now his, for sensing the significance of "public relations" in one of the most sensitive and demanding posts in the Princeton Area, for looking to the future with a quiet conviction that bodes well for the Borough, he is our nominee as

Thomas John Cawley, an able, tough-minded civil engineer with marked capacities for understanding what he terms "those problems that are important to others." At age 33, and in his fourth year as a Princetonian, the Long Island-born Cawley has been tapped by the Borough of Princeton for the assignment of Borough Engineer, a post in which he will be responsible for administering an over-all budget approaching $170,000, for directing a staff of 13 persons, and, in fact, for spending approximately one out of every three dollars the Borough will lay out for local purposes during the fiscal year 1961.

Succeeding the incumbent for the past five years, Arthur I. Brokaw, Cawley is stepping into a relatively new job (established in 1951) with the creation of the joint Borough-University-Township Sewer Operating Committee, which has become of ever-mounting importance as the Borough, one-eighth of the Township's geographic size, has approached its saturation point in population and as its environs have continued to zoom. Possibly better than any other group of career public officials, Cawley and his associates are in a position to see that the Borough over the long haul must look beyond its own boundaries in order to solve its major problems.

The Engineering portfolio in a municipality the size of the Borough is an around-the-clock proposition that is essentially an amalgam of jobs requiring a high degree of versatility and adaptability. For instance, Cawley, a licensed Professional Engineer in the State as well as an accredited Sewage Treatment Plant Engineer and land surveyor, is currently preparing 13 separate operating budgets and, under Borough ordinances, is assuming at least four supplemental titles: Zoning Of-
